TAMMANY CHIEF SHOWS IRON HAND,

Murphy Insists on Nominating Grout and Fornes Despite Brooklyn's Protest.

"USES HIS BRUTAL MIGHT."

After King's County Delegation Have Agreed to McClellan for Mayor, He Will Not Compromise-Political Situation Complicated.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Oct. 3.-Mixed as was the political situation before the Democratic City Convention met on Thursday night at Carnegle Hall, the action of Chas. F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, in forcing through the nomination of Colonel George B. Me-Cielian for Mayor, Edward M. Grout for Comptroller and Churles V. P.ornes for President of the Board of Aldermen, has confused matters more than ever.

veteran leader, Hugh McLaughlin, warned Murphy that they would oppose his slate. After McClellan's name was put in nomination, Brooklyn offered the name of Judge William J. Gaynor. When the vote was taken, McClellan had a majority of 215. Brooklyn then moved to make the Brooklyn's delegation was hopeful that Murphy would be satisfied with the nomi-nation of his close personal and political friend, and not insist upon foisting Grout and Fornes, already the candidates of the fusionists, upon the Democratic ticket. But the Tammany leader, with "brutal might," as McLaughlin called it. put force through his slate and threw down the day. gauntiet to King's County.

Not satisfied with humiliating the Brooklynites by voting down every proposition and ignoring their every protest, Senator Grady, the silver-tongued orator, bitterly atacked them from the platform. He probably was sorry for this a few min-uies later, for Grady told the Brooking oelegation that, while they had a right to withhold their suffrages from George B. Motleian for Mayor, they lacked the true bemocratic spirit in withholding from nim even their applause.

The McLaugnin delegation promptly sent Martin w. Littleton back to the platform. For five minutes he talked straight at Murphy, demanding to know where was his mannood in nominating a man who would not stand on the pist-torm. He probably was sorry for this a few min-

Many of the New York desegates saw the mistake that was being made, On the platform, as the various talkers pounded the Brooklyn men, could be frequently heard such remarks as, "Oh, let up!"
"What are they trying to do?" 'It's a fool game to rub it in," and so on, and van, essaying to second the nomination of Grout, in his very first sentence referred to "Our defunct sister city." The galleries rose with a roar, and would hear him no further. He made a few other remarks in between the rounds of hooting and laughing, and then gave up the job.

It was little wonder after this that the Brooklyn delegation refused to make Grout's nomination unanimous. They stood by Assistant District Attorney Elder, who came from the West a few years ago and brought a good deal of the mountain breeze with him, some of which he loosed. "Do you want to nominate a man," he had said, "who two years ago said that you (Tammany Hall) were a stench in his nosmis? He cannot have the votes of the King's County Convention, either in the convention or outside of it," so when a Richmond County delegate moved to make the nomination of Grout unanimous, John L. Shea, chairman of the King's County Executive Committee, objected, and the object of the announcement was received with almost as many hisses as cheers.

McLaughlin's Stattement.

Hugh McLaughlin says the King's County Democracy will not bolt the Demcoratic nominations, but makes it clear that the organization will not support Grout and Fornes, who, he says, are Republicans. He also paid his respects to Senator Grady for his attack on the Brooklyn delegates.

"The Kins's County Democratic organ-

Brooklyn delegates.

"The King's County Democratic organization," said Mr. McLaugalin yesterday, "never boited a Democratic nomination in fitty-four years since I have been the leader, and it will not do so now. It certainly will not bolt any Democrat who is on the teket. Grout and Fornes are Republicans, and I do not see how any Democrat can support them."

"Will there be an independent ticket?"
was asked.
"I do not know. You will have to "I do not know. You will have to see the fusionists about that. It seems to me

"I do not know. You will have to see the fusionists about that. It seems to me that the voters are only waiting for a good opportunity to get at Mr., Grout, and I hope that they will have a chance to do so. He does not deserve the vote of any right-thinking man."

"Shall we keep up the fight against Grout at the polls? Of course we shall. When I was interested in game chickens there was one breed that raised the feathers about its neck. When these feathers commenced to come up, we knew that the bird was gone. We used to call them 'sneakers." Now, the King's County or ganization is not composed of sneakers and Charley Murphy will find us here whenever he desires to cross the bridge."

Grayville, Ill., Oct. 2.-The gathering of mussel shells along the Wabash River is quite an industry this season. Several hundred men are at work along the is good money in the work, as a man can his work. There are said to be about twenty different varieties in the river, but not all are good for buttons—at least the buyers are refusing some of the shells which are called coils.

Two shell buyers are here buying shells, which are shipped to pearl button factories in Iowa and Arkansus. The price paid for a ton of shells is $8 on the river bank or $10 loaded in the car. Several carloads have already been shipped from this city, and the industry has just begun. Shell men say that there will be a supply of shells in the river for three years or more. This is the first time that the stream has been worked and there are said to be some very large beds in the river. One bed south of this city some miles is said to be two miles long and fifteen feet deep.

In addition to the gathering of the shells the diggers can frequently make some money on the side by the sale of a pearl. Only a few good pearls have as yet been found, but quite a number of slugs have been pocketed by the pearlers. The slugs can also be disposed of, but the price is very low compared to the suries of pearls. There are a few pearl buyers here, but they are not offering much for the slugs and pearls that are offered for sale. Seventy-five chirals is about the average price paid for an ounce, and as they are very light it takes several to make an ounce. The work will be kept up all fall until the river freezes up. Shell men predict that by next apring there will be from 2,000 to 5,000 men at work as my the river gathering shells. not all are good for buttons-at least the
